OHIO COAL MINERS
AID OTHER MINERS

Declares Green as the Principle for which They Fought is Adopted Elsewhere.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) BELLAIRE, O., Oct. 7.—Declaring that the long strike in the east Ohio coal field, which resulted in the inauguration of the run-of-mine basis for miners, had materially assisted in bringing the same system to other important coal fields, William Green, international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, at the Miner's day celebration here today, gave credit to the men for their fidelity to the principles of the organization.

"Fifteen thousand miners in the eastern Ohio coal field are today working under a contract covering a period of two years, and the agreement, while no doubt containing some objectionable features and not embodying certain rights to which the mine workers are entitled, nevertheless provides for the weighing and paying for coal upon an absolute run of mine basis.

"Only a short time ago the mine workers here were engaged in a constant struggle with their employers. All of us can remember the fourteen months' struggle through which they passed when they were struggling for the run-of-mine system. Then hunger and want and suffering prevailed, whereas now the mines are running, the men are working and a reasonable degree of peace and satisfaction prevails. The miners of eastern Ohio deserve the highest credit for the splendid manner in which they carried forward the fight to a successful issue. No body of men could have done better.

"Did any of you ever dream that when you were making this fight for yourselves, you were also making it for the miners of western Pennsylvania, Indiana, and other sections where coal was being mined on the screen basis? Subsequent events have proved that the issue of this contest affected wider fields, than when you fought and won for yourselves, you fought and won for the 50,000 miners in western Pennsylvania. As a result the United Mine Workers took a determined stand and unfolding position in favor of the establishment of the mine-run system universally, and the operators of western Pennsylvania finally yielded. Not only was this great reform agreed to, but many advances in wages, ranging from five to thirteen per cent, were secured at the same time.

"Figures for coal mining under the mine-run system in eastern Ohio this year will show that a larger tonnage has been produced than ever before. The amount of coal now being mined and shipped is limited only by the ability of operators to supply the demand. All this is most pleasing to the men, who, when the strike was on, were bitterly assailed as the enemies of business and the destroyers of the coal industry. To those who honestly opposed us we cherish no ill feeling or ill will."

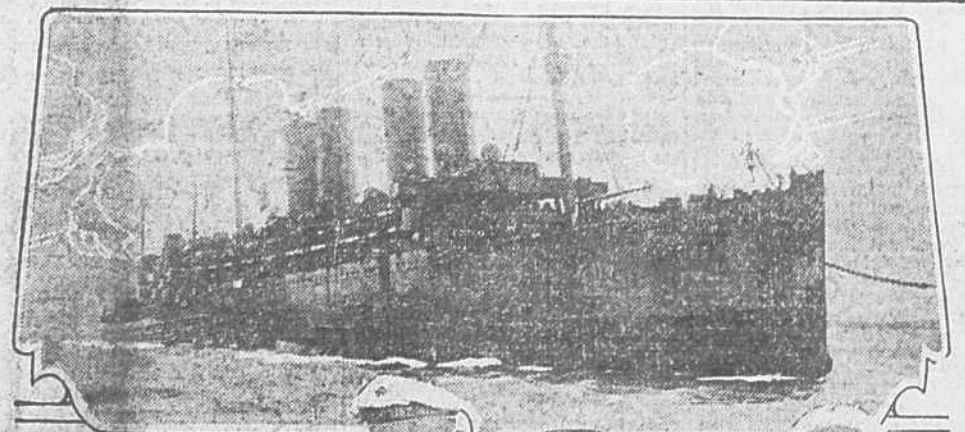

"Mr. Green referred to the Gallaher law which in effect repealed the mine-run law, and continued: "The United Mine Workers of America are going forward, improving the condition of its members—increasing wages, shortening the hours of employment, bringing to the homes and families of miners larger blessings and increasing happiness. Let us take courage and go forward. The things about which we complain can and will be corrected as time goes by. It is only through the efforts of a four economic organization that we can secure for ourselves the rights to which we are entitled. In doing so we must go along the well ordered path of practicability and businesslike methods. We will succeed just in proportion as we pursue such a policy."

MARYSVILLE, Oct. 7.—With a shriek, Miss Amanda Parkins, a pretty young school teacher, jumped from her bed shortly after midnight and fell in a faint. When she revived she pointed to her bed and an investigation disclosed a big bull snake, four feet long, asleep in the bed.

Miss Parkins had just returned from the closing dance of the Sutton Teacher's Institute. The sudden cold weather is believed to have driven the snake to the bed.

HE LIKES MARRIED LIFE, BUT FOR ONLY ONE DAY

LA CROSSE, Wis., Oct. 7.—Henry Gorder, Virgo, lost his liking for married life after trying it one day, according to witnesses in court, and so his bride, Alma, was given her divorce. Henry, it was testified, married Alma only after officers of the law obtained custody of him. Henry went home that night and next day mediately proceeded to thread a real needle instead of a whisker. You would have to see it to believe it," explained the owner of the Maltese. "The only logical explanation," he continued, "is that some ago, in dark days of our country, some sewing machine, disatisfied with being a woman, finally wished to be a man. The great law of life responding to the impulse which she carried with her out of her body has rewarded her by reincarnating her as a tom-cat."

SELLS HIS WHISKERS FOR THE MODEST SUM OF $2

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 7.—"Uncle Bill" Stevens, one of the city's best-known and most eccentric characters, sold his whiskers, the pride of his life, to a city official here today for $2, after he had been told that a true follower of Woodrow Wilson should be proud to have a "close shave" and should not wear the distinctive whiskers of Mr. Hughes. The amputation was performed with a pair of scissors before a large crowd at the city hall. Mr. Stevenson has ever voted the Democratic ticket.

CUTMEAT CHANGES NAME, BUT STILL IT IS CUTMEAT

Information from the postoffice department has advised that a request of the residents that the name of the village be changed from Cutmeat to Vasoso has been granted. The change will not really relieve the situation for Vasoso is Sioux Indian for Cutmeat.
